RUNMATCH

PARTNERSHIP PROPOSAL

for Matthew Thomas

30% Equity · Co-Owner · Built by a Founding Team With ~$20M in Combined Startup Value

THE OPPORTUNITY

Become the face and co-owner of RunMatch.

RunMatch is a competitive running platform where users put real money on the line in group challenges. Runs are tracked through Strava. Winners take the prize pool. RunMatch keeps 7% of every dollar.

This is the Prime Energy playbook. Congo Brands built the product, handled the operations, and ran the entire backend. Logan Paul and KSI became the face, the brand, and the growth engine. The result was a billion-dollar company in two years.

RunMatch is applying that same structure to the competitive running space — and we want Matthew Thomas as our Logan Paul.

PRIME →

$0 □ $1B in 2 years

Built by Congo Brands.
Fronted by Logan Paul & KSI.

RUNMATCH →

Already live · 7% take rate

Real product. Real infrastructure.
Real viral loop.

THE GAP →

Nobody owns 'compete for cash'

Strava owns tracking.
Runna owns training.
The race is wide open.

THE DEAL

30% / 70% — equity, not a campaign.

MATTHEW THOMAS

30%

EQUITY · REVENUE · EXIT VALUE

- Face of the brand across IG, TikTok, YouTube, Strava
- Regular content featuring RunMatch competitions
- Recruits running influencers + athletes to the platform
- Represents RunMatch at events, races, and partnerships
- Drives community + culture

RUNMATCH (TEAM)

70%

PRODUCT · TECH · OPERATIONS

- App development + engineering (iOS, Android, web)
- Strava integration + run verification
- Payment processing + prize-pool infrastructure
- Legal compliance + regulatory navigation
- Server infrastructure, support, fraud detection

This is ownership. Not a sponsorship. Not a flat fee. Real equity in a real tech company.

WHY 30%

Creators who lend their brand and audience deserve real equity.

Logan Paul's stake in Prime was estimated at 10–20% when the deal was structured. KSI held a similar range. Those numbers built generational wealth for both of them.

Matthew gets 30% — meaningfully higher — because RunMatch is earlier, the running space is wide open, and Matthew's audience is the single biggest accelerant we have.

30% means 30% of every dollar the company earns, 30% of the company's enterprise value, and 30% of any future acquisition. Forever.

EQUITY COMPARISON

Logan Paul (Prime)	10–20%
KSI (Prime)	10–20%
Typical influencer brand deal	0%
Matthew Thomas (RunMatch)	30%

WHAT MATTHEW DOES

What Logan does for Prime — applied to running.

Be the face.

RunMatch lives across your Instagram, TikTok, YouTube, and Strava feeds.

Make the content.

Regular videos, reels, posts featuring RunMatch competitions.

Bring the talent.

Recruit other running influencers and athletes to compete on the platform.

Show up.

Promote and participate in sponsored competitions Marathon-week, race-week, off-season.

Represent.

Be the RunMatch presence at events, races, and partnership launches.

Lead the culture.

You set the tone for the running community we're building around the brand.

THE TEAM

Three companies. ~$20M in combined value. Already shipped.

RunMatch isn't a first attempt at a startup. It's the next venture from a team that already knows how to execute.

Heaviside Hosting

Cloud infrastructure and hosting platform.

Built and scaled the same kind of infrastructure RunMatch runs on.

Cleatus AI

AI tools and automation for government contracting.

Same team building RunMatch's AI matchmaking and fraud detection.

Art-ificial

AI-powered creative tools.

Applied AI experience powers the product side of RunMatch.

~$20M in combined startup value · Multiple exits · Real engineering DNA

WHAT MATTHEW GETS — BEYOND THE NUMBERS

Once-in-a-lifetime ownership in a category nobody owns yet.

Real equity.

30% in a real tech company. Not a brand deal. Not a sponsorship. Ownership.

A team that's done it.

Founders with ~$20M in combined startup value handling everything behind the scenes.

Already built.

RunMatch is live. Real app. Real infrastructure. Real users. No 'we're going to build it' risk.

First-mover advantage.

Strava owns tracking. Runna owns training. Nobody owns 'compete for cash.' That's RunMatch.

Compounding upside.

If RunMatch hits 5% of Runna's scale, the company is worth tens of millions. Matthew's 30% of that is generational wealth.

THE PRODUCT

Real money. Real runs. Real winners.

RunMatch is a competitive running platform where users put real money on the line in group challenges. Runs are tracked automatically through Strava, and the prize pool pays out to the winner. Once a runner is in, there are no cheap excuses — either stick to your goals or pay up.

7% platform take rate
vs DraftKings 10–15%

Strava
verified tracking
no manual entry. no cheating.

Public
+ private matches compete with friends or strangers.

THE GROWTH ENGINE

Every download generates ~6.5 users.

Because every competition needs friends, the viral loop isn't optional — it's the product.

1 download → invites 4 friends → 25% bring 2 more → = 6.5 users

WHY IT WORKS

Cash incentive → 8% download conversion (industry avg 5%)

Competition → 12% monthly churn (typical fitness apps 20%+)

Social pressure → friends hold each other accountable

VIRAL MULTIPLIER

6.5x

every direct download compounds into ~6.5 active users

YEAR 1 SCENARIOS

Three honest scenarios. Matthew's 30% in each.

CONSERVATIVE

$18,300

MATTHEW'S YEAR 1

Active users: 8K

Co. revenue: $61K

Mo 12: $1,080/mo

BASE CASE

OUR PICK

$45,300

MATTHEW'S YEAR 1

Active users: 52K

Co. revenue: $151K

Mo 12: $8,700/mo

BULL CASE

$108,600

MATTHEW'S YEAR 1

Active users: 130K+

Co. revenue: $362K

Mo 12: $29,400/mo

SCENARIO COMPARISON

Side by side — Matthew's cut bolded.

	CONSERVATIVE	BASE CASE	BULL CASE
Direct downloads / month	120	192	300
Viral coefficient	3	4	5
Monthly churn	18%	12%	10%
Avg spend / user / month	$8	$10	$12
Active users (month 6)	~4,500	~23,700	~58,000
Active users (month 12)	~8,000	~52,000	~130,000+
Company revenue (month 12)	~$3,600	~$29,000	~$98,000
Platform volume (month 12)	~$52K	~$417K	~$1.4M
Company year 1 total	~$61K	~$151K	~$362K
Matthew 30% — year 1	~$18.3K	~$45.3K	~$108.6K
Matthew 30% — month 12	~$1,080/mo	~$8,700/mo	~$29,400/mo

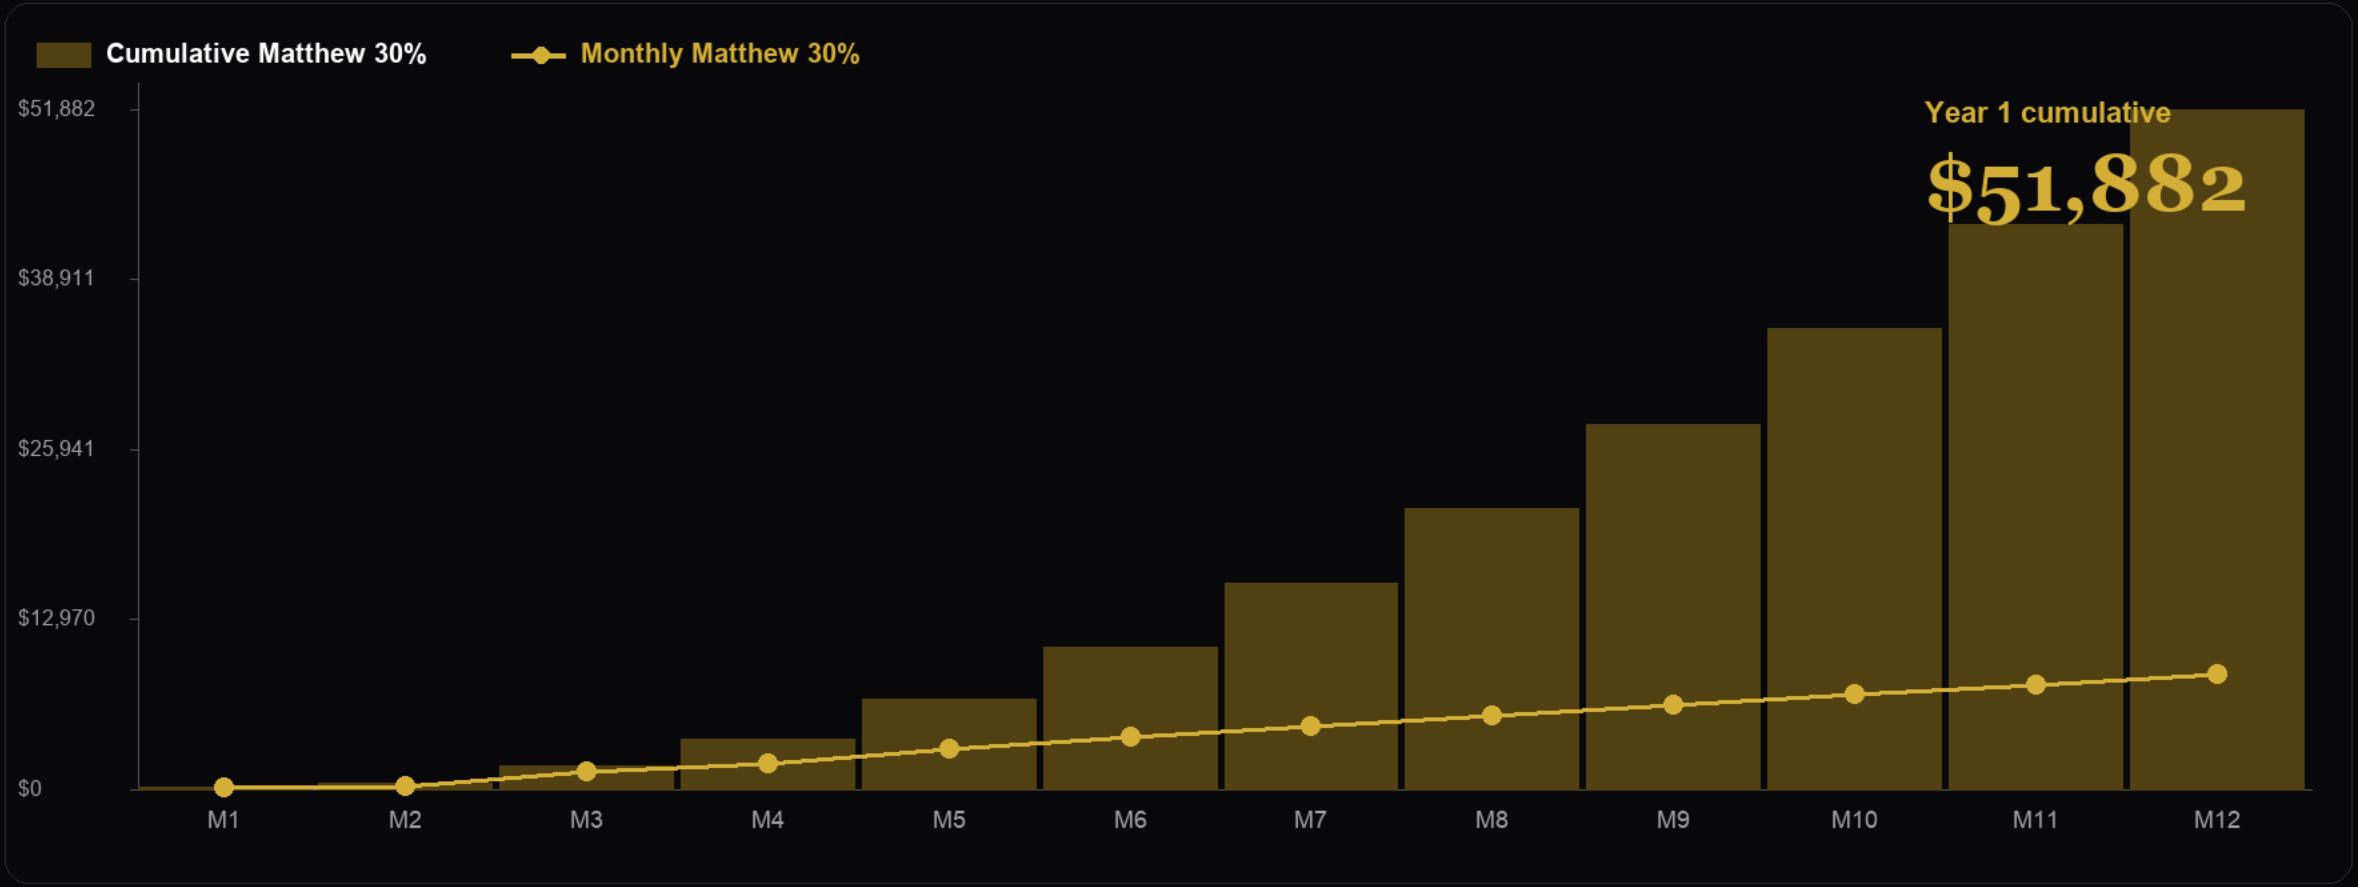
BASE CASE — MATTHEW'S MONTHLY 30%

From $131 in month 1 to $8,768 in month 12.



MARKET CONTEXT

The running app space is exploding. Nobody owns 'cash competition' yet.

Strava

180M users

$415M annual revenue · adds 3M users/month

Runna

$3.5M / mo

Acquired by Strava, April 2025 · ~400K downloads/mo

Fitness app market

$3.4B

Grew 24.5% in 2025

CashWalk

+42% YoY

Cash-reward fitness apps lead growth segments

Strava owns tracking. Runna owns training. Nobody owns 'compete for cash by running.' RunMatch does.

AT RUNNA'S SCALE

Even 5–10% of Runna's volume puts Matthew at $4.5M+/year.

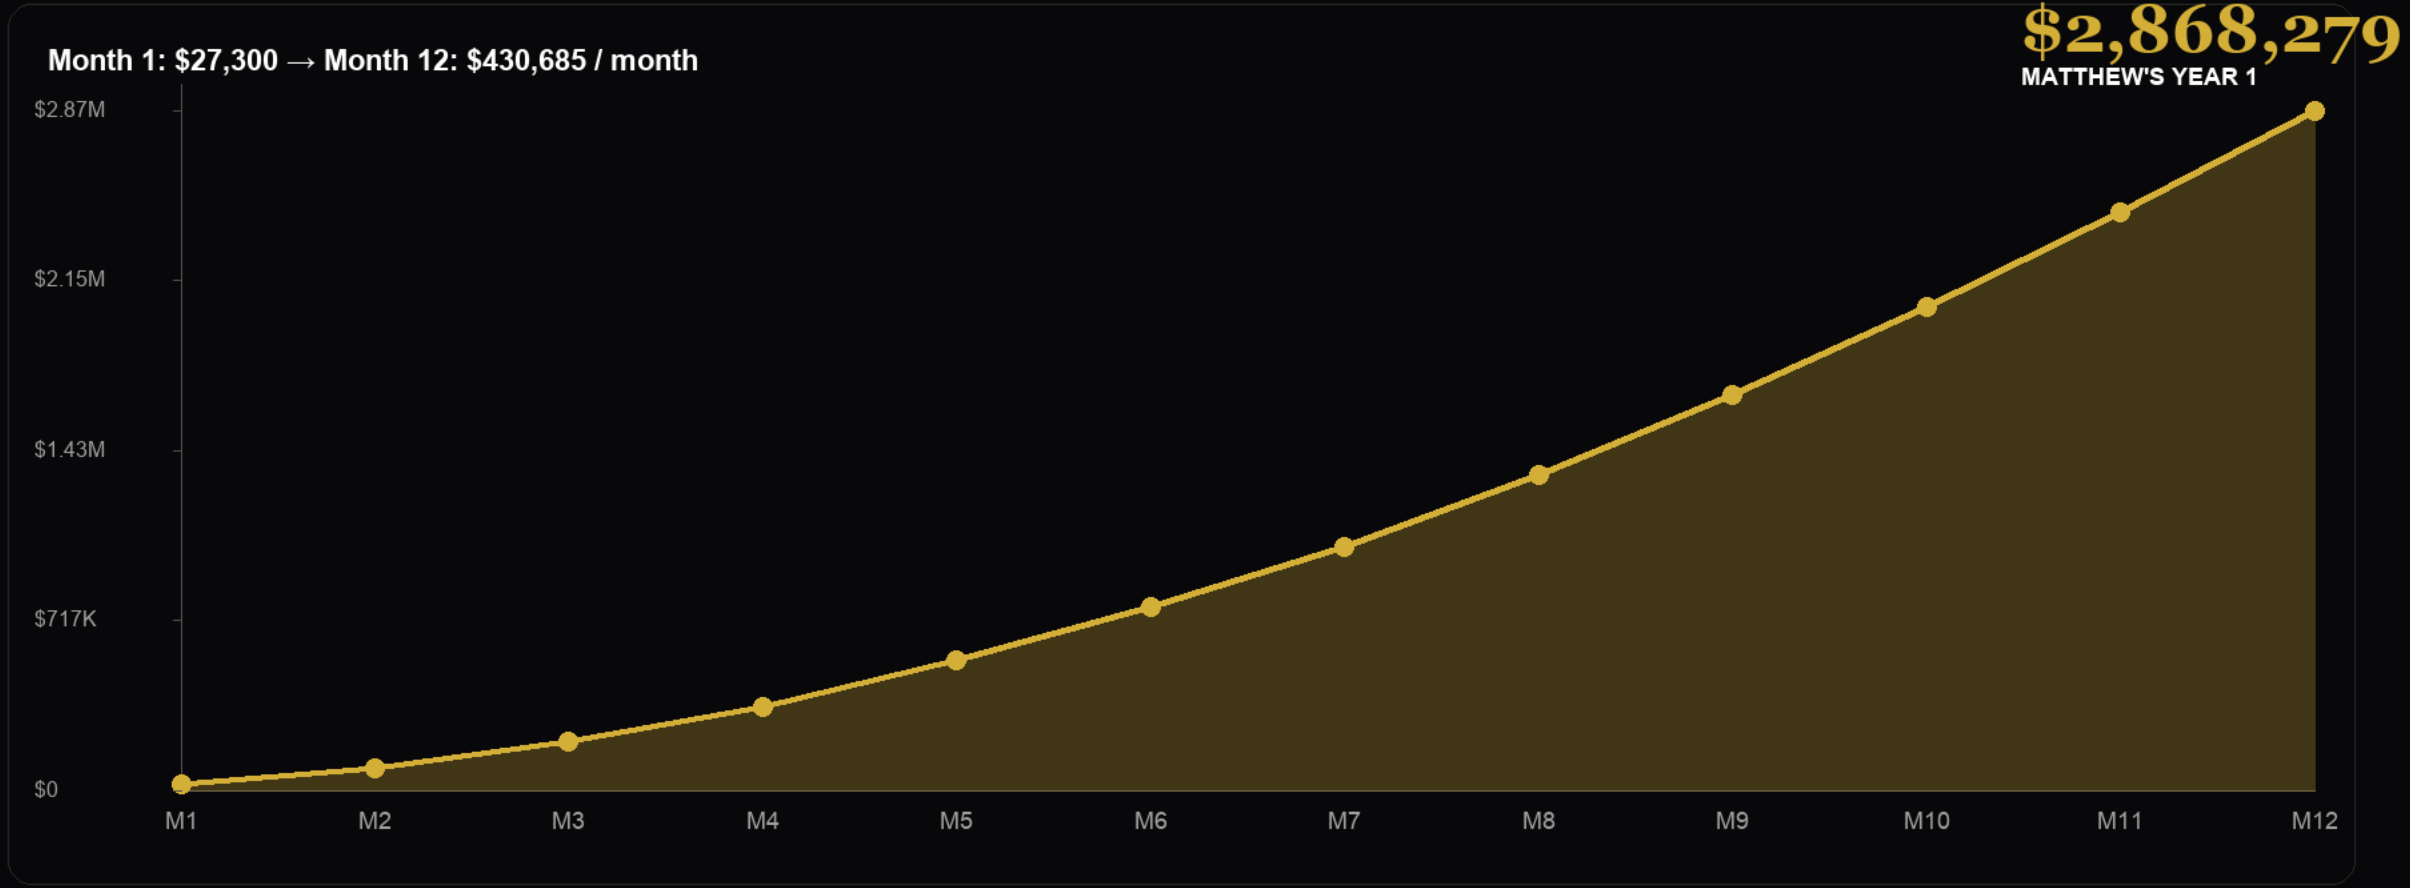
Runna has zero viral loop. Every download = one user. RunMatch's 4× multiplier changes the math entirely.

Capture Rate	Direct Downloads/mo	Active Users (Mo 12)	Company 7% (Mo 12)	Matthew 30% (Mo 12)	Matthew Year 1
5% of Runna	20K/mo	~820K	~$460K/mo	~$138K/mo	~$4.5M
10% of Runna	40K/mo	~1.6M	~$920K/mo	~$276K/mo	~$9M
25% of Runna	100K/mo	~4.1M	~$2.3M/mo	~$690K/mo	~$22.5M
50% of Runna	200K/mo	~8.2M	~$4.6M/mo	~$1.4M/mo	~$45M
100% (Runna-level)	400K/mo	~16.4M	~$9.2M/mo	~$2.8M/mo	~$90M

Realistic 1–2 year target: 5–10% of Runna's volume. Matthew Year 1 at 10%: ~$2.9M (cumulative).

10% OF RUNNA — MATTHEW'S CUMULATIVE 30%

Year 1 total: $2.87M for Matthew at 10% of Runna's volume.



BRAND DEAL vs RUNMATCH PARTNERSHIP

A brand deal pays you once. RunMatch pays you forever.

	TYPICAL BRAND DEAL	RUNMATCH PARTNERSHIP
Payment structure	One-time / short campaign	30% of revenue, forever
Year 1 earnings	$50K–$150K (then it stops)	$45K–$109K (and accelerating)
Year 2+	Nothing	Exponential as platform scales
Ownership	None	30% equity in the company
Exit value	$0	30% of any acquisition
Technical burden	None	None — handled by the team
Risk	Zero (zero upside too)	Low (no capital required)

The Prime comparison: Logan didn't get paid to promote a drink — he became a co-owner and built generational wealth.

The running space doesn't have its Prime yet. RunMatch is built to be it.

And we want Matthew to be the name on the bottle.

30% Equity · Co-Owner · No Capital Required